Sources and Evidence

Questions 1, 2 and 3 of the CRQ

Primary Source: For historians, primary sources are materials from the time period being studied. These original documents offer the freshness that comes from direct personal observation, butack thebenefitthat only comes from hindsight. These materials include letters, speeches, diaries, newspaper articles, oral history interviews, documents, photographs, and artifacts. They can also include less obvious sources (songs, plays, poems, advertisements, survey data, legal documents, and financial documents) as long as they come directly from the time period in question and provide relevant historical evidence.

Secondary Source: For historians, secondary sources are works of synthesis, analysis, and interpretation based on primary sources as well as the work of other authors. Some examples include textbooks, history books, scholarly journal articles, biographies, and encyclopedias Secondary sources are interpretive works created or writtertheitime period being studied and have the benefit of hindsight, but lack the benefit of immediacy.

Considerationswhenusinghistorical sources:

- Meanings of words sometimes change over time.
- Valuescanbedifferentin differenttime periods as welasin different cultures.

Question 2 of CRQ

Bias: Bias refers to oneidedness. It always implies the opposite of objectivity. Instead of presenting facts in a neutral way, without inserting one's particular slant or opinion, bias is usually expressed in one of several ways:

- Through the use of "loaded" language, including appeals to emotion, exaggeration, or propaganda designed to frame a person, event, group, or institution in an overly positive or overly negative manner, e.g., the wicked, barbaric soldiers who rampage the countryside, wantonly destroying the property of innocent, unsuspecting civilians
- Through the deliberate inclusion or deliberate exclusion of certain facts to support a particular interpretation, include a lack of balance or an argument where only one side is presented and specific details are overemphasized, downplayed, or omitted
- Through character attacks and slurs, including subjective statements against a particular race, nation, or group within a society

An author may have a reason for being orded. Bias may result from limited access to information, unquestioned traditions, and/or life experiences. Unreasoned judgment or a prejudiced outlook can produce bias. Bias may be indicated by knowledge about the background of the author ho may have æpecificpoint of view: political, economic social, religious, or moral.

Beingbiaseddoes notimit the value of æource;however,it doesaffect how evidence from the biased source is used.

ScoringNote: When answering question 2a, a response cannot simply atethe author isbiased. It must explain the answeby stating which part of the story the author lefbut or what the author inaccurately reported.

Point of View: Point of view is an opinion. Historiansuse point of view*lifferently* than English teachers who define point of view as first person, second person, and third person.

Difference between point of view and bias: Point of view and bias exist on a spectrum betweenobjectivity and subjectivity. An authormay expression objective point of view on an issuein a balancedway OR may expression opinion that shows bias by providing unreasoned or poorly supported beliefs and/or strong personal feelings.

Audience: Audience refers to the group for whom a given document or sou we sproduce br intended. When thinking about audience ask:

- Why does this work/document exist?
- Who was the author thinking would receive this sork/document?
- Doesthe author of the work/document/dicatewho the intended audienize?

Purpose:Purposerefersto thereasona record, document, osourcewas produced. When thinking about purpose ask:

- Why does this work/document exist?
- Why did the author create this work/document?
- What is the intent of thiswork/document?

Some documents will include background/contextual information. If included, this information will appear above the document and should be considered as part of the document. Sourcing citation information will always appear below the document and should be considered be considered by the document.
